NEW AVENGERS: DISASSEMBLED
PART THREE

PREVIOUSLY...

A Superhuman Registration Act has been passed which requires all people possessing paranormal abilities to register with the government, divulging their true identities to the authorities and submitting to training and sanctioning in the manner of federal agents. Those who do not register are considered criminals. Some heroes, such as Iron Man, see this as a natural evolution of the role of superhumans in society and a reasonable request. Others view the Act as an assault on their civil liberties. After being called upon to hunt down heroes in defiance of the Registration Act, Captain America goes underground and begins to form a resistance movement.

With the current Avengers team in disarray, Spider-Woman finds herself alone. She is a double agent, working for both the terrorist group Hydra and S.H.I.E.L.D., the world's peacekeeping taskforce. Now, with the superhuman landscape shifting underneath her feet, Jessica Drew must decide on which side she falls.

YOU REGISTERED UNDER SYBIL DVORAK.
ARE YOU KIDDIN' ME?
CUTE.
WHAT ARE YOU DOING HERE, COLONEL FURY?
I THOUGHT YOU WERE UNDER-GROUND TILL FURTHER--
IT'S THE WAR. EVERYTHING IS DIFFERENT NOW.
TIME TO TAKE A SIDE, JESSICA.
WHAT SIDE DO YOU WANT ME ON?
WHAT SIDE DO YOU WANT TO BE ON?
IT'S UP TO ME NOW?
OF COURSE IT'S UP TO YOU.
WHAT ABOUT THE PLAN?
THE PLAN HAS CHANGED.

I THOUGHT YOU WANTED ME TO ASK HER IF SHE LIKED YOU AS MORE THAN A FRIEND.
YES, MISS HILL.
I KNOW THAT'S YOU CONTROLLING THE A.I. UNIT ON THIS NICK FURY LIFE MODEL DECOY.
I GRANT YOU, IT'S A PRETTY DAMN GOOD IMPROVEMENT OVER THE OLD ONES, BUT YOU GUYS HAVE GOT TO WORK ON THE SMELL.

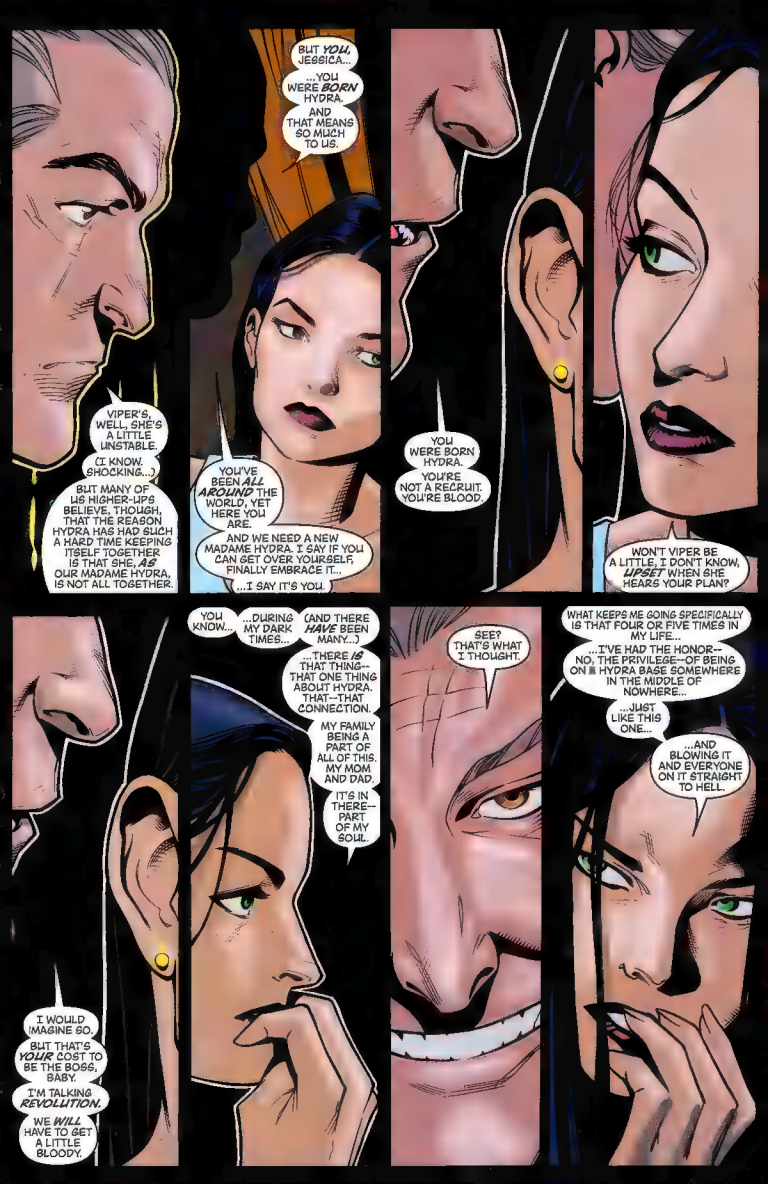
THE GAME'S CHANGED. AGAIN.
THE PLAYERS ARE CHANGING. AGAIN.
THIS SUPER HERO CIVIL WAR HAS CHANGED EVERYTHING.
TIME TO IMPROVISE A LITTLE. CHANGE THE PLAN.
SO I SAY NO MORE GAMES. NO MORE DOUBLE-CROSSES FOR EITHER OF US.
FORGET FURY. FURY'S NOT GOING TO HELP YOU.
TIME TO THINK ABOUT HYDRA AND WHAT ITS PLACE IN THE FALLOUT OF ALL OF THIS WILL BE.
SO YOU DID KNOW I WAS WITH FURY?
I KNEW YOU THOUGHT YOU WERE.
BUT NOW YOU SEE THAT YOU WERE JUST USED.
IF YOU KNEW I WAS WITH FURY, WHY DIDN'T YOU KILL ME?
WE WERE GETTING THINGS OUT OF IT AS WELL.
AND, CLEARLY, YOU NEEDED TO SEE FOR YOURSELF..
...THAT YOUR HERO "FRIENDS" AND FURY WOULD TURN THEIR BACKS ON YOU. THEY WERE NOT YOUR FRIENDS.
THAT S.H.I.E.L.D. IS NOTHING BUT A BUNCH OF GANGSTERS.
BUT YOU UNDERSTAND THIS NOW, RIGHT?
BECAUSE, I GOT TO BE HONEST WITH YOU, I'M RUNNING OUT OF WAYS TO SHOW YOU.
WHAT DO YOU WANT FROM ME?
ONE MINUTE YOU WANT TO KILL ME, THE NEXT YOU RESCUE ME...
WHAT DO YOU WANT FROM ME?!
THIS WILL SHOCK YOU A LITTLE, BUT HEAR ME OUT...
I THINK THE NEXT MOVE FOR YOU--AND US--IS FOR YOU TO GO TO THE HEAD OF THE TABLE.
HEAD OF THE TABLE? YOUR TABLE?
YES.
MADAME HYDRA SITS AT THE HEAD OF YOUR TABLE.



VIPER'S, WELL, SHE'S A LITTLE UNSTABLE.
(I KNOW. SHOCKING...)
BUT MANY OF US HIGHER-UPS BELIEVE, THOUGH, THAT THE REASON HYDRA HAS HAD SUCH A HARD TIME KEEPING ITSELF TOGETHER IS THAT SHE, AS OUR MADAME HYDRA, IS NOT ALL TOGETHER.
BUT YOU, JESSICA...
...YOU WERE BORN HYDRA.
AND THAT MEANS SO MUCH TO US.
YOU'VE BEEN ALL AROUND THE WORLD, YET HERE YOU ARE.
AND WE NEED A NEW MADAME HYDRA. I SAY IF YOU CAN GET OVER YOURSELF, FINALLY EMBRACE IT...
...I SAY IT'S YOU.
YOU WERE BORN HYDRA.
YOU'RE NOT A RECRUIT. YOU'RE BLOOD.
WON'T VIPER BE A LITTLE, I DON'T KNOW, UPSET WHEN SHE HEARS YOUR PLAN?
I WOULD IMAGINE SO.
BUT THAT'S YOUR COST TO BE THE BOSS, BABY.
I'M TALKING REVOLUTION.
WE WILL HAVE TO GET A LITTLE BLOODY.
YOU KNOW...
...DURING MY DARK TIMES...
(AND THERE HAVE BEEN MANY...)
...THERE IS THAT THING--THAT ONE THING ABOUT HYDRA. THAT--THAT CONNECTION.
MY FAMILY BEING A PART OF ALL OF THIS. MY MOM AND DAD.
IT'S IN THERE--PART OF MY SOUL.
SEE? THAT'S WHAT I THOUGHT.
WHAT KEEPS ME GOING SPECIFICALLY IS THAT FOUR OR FIVE TIMES IN MY LIFE...
...I'VE HAD THE HONOR--NO, THE PRIVILEGE--OF BEING ON A HYDRA BASE SOMEWHERE IN THE MIDDLE OF NOWHERE...
...JUST LIKE THIS ONE....
...AND BLOWING IT AND EVERYONE ON IT STRAIGHT TO HELL.

MARVEL HEROES HOTSPOT

Mark Gruenwald 1953-1996 – Patron Saint of Marveldom

TOM SEZ

On August 12, 1996, ten years ago this month, Mark Gruenwald passed from this Earth. It was a shocking thing to hear for those of us who were around in the Marvel Bullpen at that point, in that Mark was a health nut and seemed in excellent physical condition. But an undiscovered congenital heart problem combined with extraordinary levels of stress wrote a premature end to his life and career.

Some reading this may remember Mark as a writer, the guy who wrote more issues of CAPTAIN AMERICA than anybody else, the guy who invented D.P.7 and guided the destiny of QUASAR, the guy who was the first to try to extrapolate the effects of super heroes on the real world in SQUADRON SUPREME. Others may recall Mark as a top-notch editor on such titles as AVENGERS, THOR and IRON MAN, one who ran a regular column in those books (and later MARVEL AGE) called "Mark's Remarks" which gave readers insight into the workings of the funny book business. And while this is all true, the Mark Gruenwald I want to talk about is the man behind the curtain.

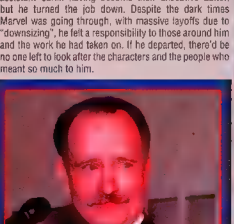
If you were reading Marvel comics in the 60s and 70s, you were aware of the Marvel Bullpen that Stan Lee wrote about on the Bullpen Bulletins page and in the letters pages: a magical place where the best and the brightest within the four-color community toiled endlessly but contentedly, crafting the best comic books on Earth. But as time passed, and more and more behind-the-scenes information came out, it became apparent that this was a fantasy, a fictional construction. Things weren't quite so idyllic in the magical Bullpen, and the artists and writers had the same discontent as any other workers in any other job. It was all make-believe.

Except for Mark Gruenwald.

Mark was what you wanted Marvel to be like when you came to work there. Mark lived his life in the spirit of those ideals, because Mark loved comic books. Upon realizing at a young age that he'd never be able to become a super hero himself, he instead dedicated his life to telling stories of heroic fantasy. And he was the living embodiment of the Marvel Bullpen as Stan Lee envisioned it.

In trying to find a way to communicate Mark's spirit to the uninitiated, the closest analogous person I could come up with is Jim Henson. Like Henson, Mark lived life with a childlike gleam in his eyes, and with a philosophy that looked for the best in people, and delighted in making them laugh and feel good. He was a genuinely good person, one of the very few I've ever met. Even before he became Executive Editor, Mark was the de facto moral officer for Marvel, hosting insane, improbable parties in the Bullpen for every holiday, and masterminding stunts like M-day, in which practically the entire staff crowded into Mark's offices wearing Michelle Marsh masks, as Mark could film the event and send the footage to the local CBS affiliate where she worked. It was an act that Mark took on the road as the ringleader of several years of convention antics, where, rather than staid slideshows about what was coming up in next month's comics, Mark would create living board games and offbeat game shows, entertaining the crowd and making them all feel like they were a part of the Marvel lifestyle. As Mark's wife put it, Mark was silly about that which was serious, and serious about that which was silly.

His organized mind drove him to explore the structure of the fictional Marvel Universe in the form of such projects as the OFFICIAL HANDBOOK TO THE MARVEL UNIVERSE, in which he and a team of experts attempted to quantify and reference virtually every aspect of the fictional reality. This was an even more massive task in the days before computers, when every line of text had to be set by hand. Mark and his assistants such as Mike Carlin and Elliot Brown used to spend entire weekends locked away within the Marvel offices, pulling each issue together and pasting it up to be ready for print. The irony was that Mark was mainly a DC fan, having grown up on the early super hero efforts of editor Julie Schwartz. He had the chance, near the end, to work for DC, his former assistant Carlin having become their Executive Editor, but he turned the job down. Despite the dark times Marvel was going through, with massive layoffs due to "downsizing", he felt a responsibility to those around him and the work he had taken on. If he departed, there'd be no one left to look after the characters and the people who meant so much to him.



"Someday the universe will tire of me and will break me down into the components I came from. Right now I'd mind if that happened, but when the time comes I imagine I will welcome no longer being separate from the rest of reality."

–Mark Gruenwald

I was not especially close to Mark. Were you to have asked him to name his friends, I wouldn't have shown up in the top fifty. And I knew him for fewer years than he's now been gone. But he had a profound influence on my life and the way I conduct my career, just as he did for almost anyone whose path he crossed. And I'm very much aware every day that, in many ways, I'm sitting in his chair, as the caretaker of the mainstream Marvel Universe, the overseer of the Marvel Handbooks, and even the guy who writes columns for his own Bullpen page. It was a strange sort of milestone when I realized that I had now edited more issues of AVENGERS than he had.

Mark was not perfect. He was sometimes too analytical, and his sensitive nature made him perhaps the wrong person to be in a position of authority when it came time to let people go. I know he carried the weight of those firings all the rest of his days. He could waffle at times, not wanting to choose one person over another when conflicts cropped up between them. But he made his life what he wanted it to be, and seemingly enjoyed every moment of it. You'd be hard-pressed to find anybody with anything bad to say about Mark. His was a rare and singular name. More than any other individual, Mark Gruenwald represented the fiction of Marvel, making it a reality even when the fact was a hard and cruel place.
